living-rooms.co.uk

Only a minute's walk from the Notting Hill Gate Tube station, five Victorian townhouses have been transformed into a boutique hotel with 51 rooms and suites. Designed by Tom Bartlett, founder of UK-based architecture and interiors firm Waldo Works, The Laslett has that distinct British elegance. In the hotel library, walls are covered with works by local artists, while upstairs the rooms are populated with pieces from Race Furniture and Pinch. The on-site eatery, The Henderson Bar & Coffee Shop, is open all day. Go here for a smoked-salmon bagel breakfast, shepherd pie for lunch or evening cocktails.
