

THE HENDERSON BAR

On a sunny August afternoon in a playground in Ladbroke Grove, a man with a steel-pan around his neck pulled aside the barrier that surrounded a small local fete, and began to walk through the streets of West London.

His name was Russell 'Russ' Henderson MBE (1924 - 2015), a Trinidadian jazz musician who came to England in 1951. With this one simple act of spontaneity, he was to pave the way for the Notting Hill Carnival as we know it today.

The Henderson Bar is named in tribute to Russ, whose portrait hangs above the bar and whose signature cocktail is our house favourite.
